Biography

"Thomas Fletcher is a former professional football player turned coach. Best known for his time as a long snapper at the University of Alabama, where he earned All-American honors. Fletcher was a key contributor to the team's success, which included winning multiple national championships. Following the 2020 season, Fletcher was selected in the 6th round of the NFL Draft by the Carolina Panthers. Following his playing career, Fletcher transitioned into coaching, where he has applied his knowledge of the game to develop and mentor athletes, particularly in the specialized areas of special teams. Known for his discipline, attention to detail, and leadership, Fletcher now dedicates his efforts to helping the next generation of players refine their skills, focusing on the importance of consistency and execution in both practice and game situations."

Statement

Coaching Special Teams is important to me because it allows me to blend my passion for the game with my commitment to helping players reach their full potential. Special teams may not always get the spotlight, but they play a vital role in shifting the momentum of games, and I take a ton of pride in preparing athletes to excel in those moments. Coaching special teams gives me the opportunity to teach discipline, attention to detail, both individually and collectively.
